TIME for ACTION!

From Closing Dumpsites to Resource Management — Be Part of World-Wide Discussions

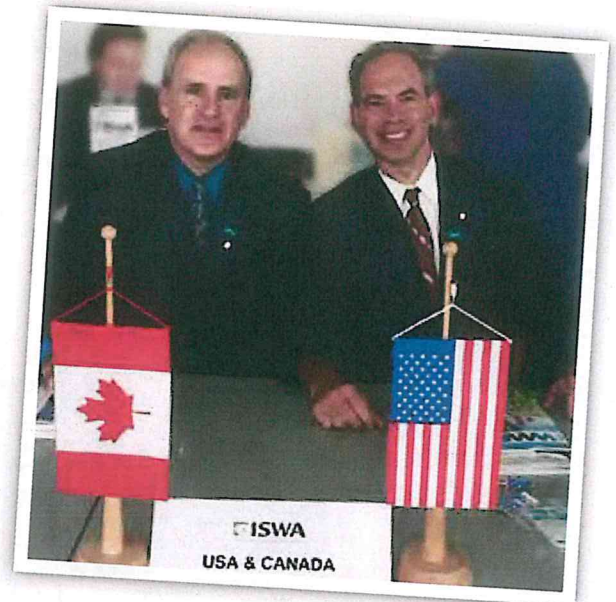

For the first time in nearly two decades, the 2017 International Solid Waste Association (ISWA) World Congress is being hosted by the Solid Waste Association of North America (SWANA) in Baltimore, Maryland, USA.

The World Congress is the biggest annual event organized by ISWA. WASTECON® is SWANA's premier solid waste industry-focused conference in North America. From Monday, September 25, 2017 - Wednesday, September 27, 2017, this epic gathering combines two exciting international events in one convenient location.

This collaboration by the leading global and North American waste associations will provide unique networking opportunities and the latest news, education, innovations, and products to help you achieve success in your operations. Attendees will have opportunities to interact with industry leaders and expand their professional network to help them develop solutions to the pressing global and local issues they face every day.

There really is, "No Time to Waste!" Register NOW at ISWA2017.org to join thousands of industry professionals, gathering from around the world, at this unique East Coast metropolitan destination.

As they say in Baltimore, "See you in Bal'mer, hon!"

TIMELY TOPICS

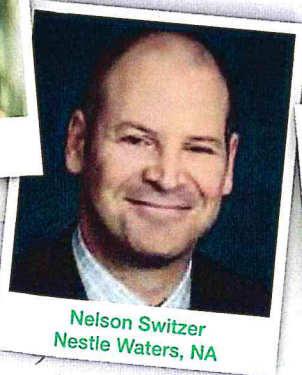

Bring your critical thinking and creative ideas to discussions on these featured issues. Multiple speakers will be engaging you in conversation around these topics. Many of these subject matter experts are featured here to help you prepare for the lively interchange of opinions.

CIRCULAR ECONOMY

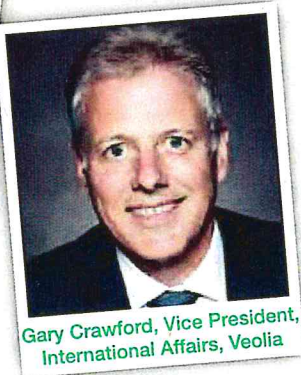

How will the Circular Economy be an opportunity for the waste management sector—as a catalyst for new skills, innovation, knowledge and development—that will result in new technologies, business models and partnerships?

John Bradburn
General Motors

Nelson Switzer
Nestle Waters, NA

Gary Crawford, Vice President,
International Affairs, Veolia

CLIMATE CHANGE

ISWA, along with 30 member countries, signed a declaration committing to the reduction of GHG emissions through proven waste and resource management techniques. What strategies are cities of the world using to influence climate changing factors?

Kathryn Garcia
Commissioner, New York City
Department of Sanitation

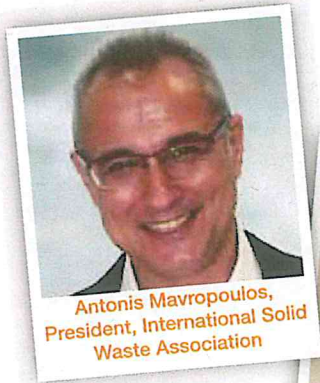

Jim McKay, General Manager,
Solid Waste Management
Services, City of Toronto

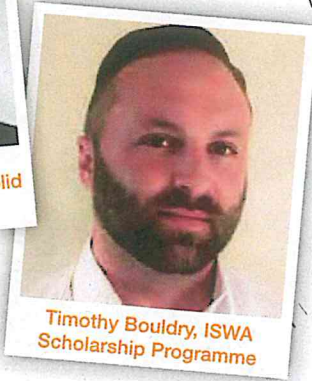

TIMELY TOPICS

CLOSING DUMPSITES

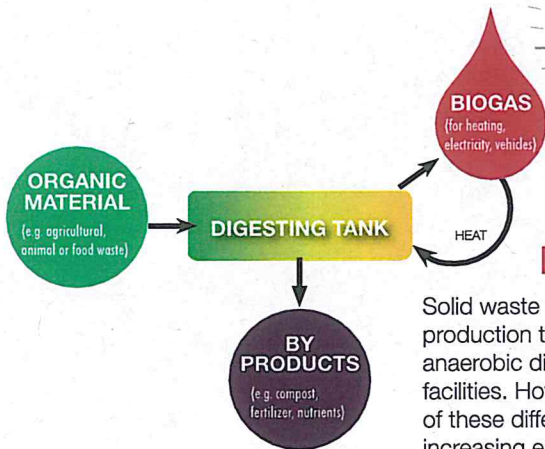

The world's most polluted places include the 50 biggest dumpsites that need to be replaced with environmentally sound and safe waste management facilities that will provide green jobs and better living conditions to millions of people. ISWA leads the way with a call to action. How will you answer the call?

Antonis Mavropoulos,
President, International Solid
Waste Association

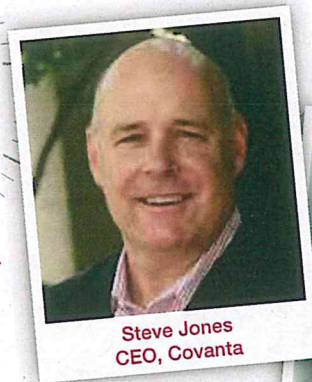

Timothy Bouldry, ISWA
Scholarship Programme

ENERGY RECOVERY

Solid waste can be used as fuel for energy production through landfill gas, waste-to-energy, anaerobic digestion and wastewater treatment facilities. How do you evaluate the environmental and economic benefits of these different technologies for your community? How does the increasing emphasis on food waste diversion impact your options?

Steve Jones
CEO, Covanta

Jim Fish
CEO, Waste Management

MARINE LITTER

Finding ways to deal with marine litter is an "end-of-pipe" solution, but much more needs to be done to prevent litter before it becomes a problem. In Baltimore, home of the "Trash Wheel", ISWA debuts a report on the positive contributions of integrated solid waste management to marine litter prevention. How will you conserve and protect your waterways?

SMART TECHNOLOGIES

Success in the waste industry depends on evolving technology. Social networks impact consumer and business behavior. Sensors, cameras and other equipment gather "big data" that require specialized analysis to be useful. New workforce skills are needed to take advantage of advancements, and those skills are in demand by other industries. How can you keep up?

TIME to SEE

MID-ATLANTIC FACILITIES

See American solid waste innovation and sustainability at its finest by enjoying one or more of the 5 full-day tour options, half-day tours and/or mobile sessions, during the ISWA World Congress/2017 WASTECON.

These fascinating tours locations range from nearby Maryland, all the way to New York City — whatever your preference, we have a tour for you!

Prince George's County Waste Management

Thursday, September 28
8:30 – 16:30

This full-day tour includes three facilities: organics composting facility; Brown Station Road Sanitary Landfill Facility, featuring an active municipal solid waste landfill with a leachate pretreatment system and a landfill-gas-to-energy facility; and the single stream County materials recycling facility.

Baltimore County Central Acceptance Facility and Eastern Sanitary Landfill

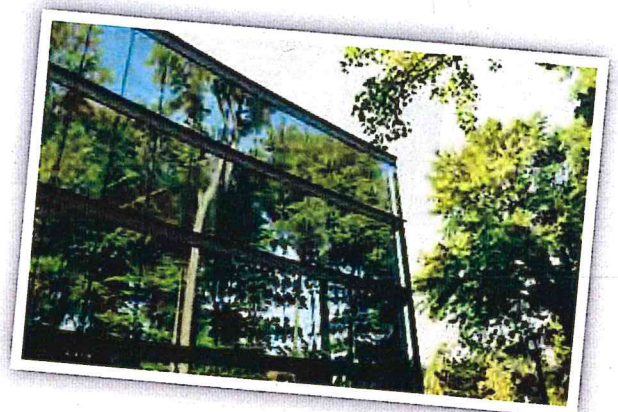

Thursday, September 28
8:30 – 16:00

This full-day tour includes three facilities: organics composting facility; Brown Station Road Sanitary Landfill Facility, featuring an active municipal solid waste landfill with a leachate pretreatment system and a landfill-gas-to-energy facility; and the single stream County materials recycling facility.

Johns Hopkins University Homewood Campus

Wednesday, September 27
9:00 – 11:00

See and learn about the program's resource reduction and recovery efforts that highlight: a dual stream system to collect fiber and container materials in academic buildings and residence halls. Tour also includes organics collection, electronics recycling, furniture reuse, and Terracycle brigades, plus biohazard waste collection. Explore a state-of-the-art undergraduate teaching lab, designed to focus on efficiency and sustainability.

TIME to EXPERIENCE

UNIQUE ENCOUNTERS

National Aquarium

Thursday, September 28
8:00 – 10:00

Baltimore National Aquarium offers a presentation on marine litter and aquatic animals. Following the presentation, attendees will have access to the aquarium exhibits.

Fresh Kills Landfill/Freshkills Park in Staten Island

Thursday, September 28
8:30 – 17:00

Journey by tour bus to explore what was once the largest landfill in the world. When finished in 2037, the landfill will function as a park covering 2,200 acres on Staten Island. Experience this highly engineered site and its infrastructure systems that manage landfill gas and leachate as you witness its transformation into an incredibly beautiful landscape.

Following the tour, participants will travel by bus to midtown Manhattan to close out your World Congress/WASTECON journey by enjoying New York City's sights or flying out of Newark, NJ airport. Otherwise, stay seated and travel back to Baltimore by bus.

Canoe 'N' Scoop

Wednesday, September 27
7:30 – 10:00

Explore the harbor via kayak while collecting trash with a trash picker through the Middle Branch of the Patapsco (to the south of Baltimore Refuse Energy Systems Company and Nick's Fish House). Don't miss this unique way to see the city from a different perspective while you see first-hand the impact of an urban environment, including the trash that builds up during downpours.

RECYCLE OFTEN.
RECYCLE RIGHT.

It's time to get back to the basics of good recycling.

The fact is that some recycling actions make a bigger impact than others. So please remember these three basic rules the next time you recycle:

Recycle all empty plastic bottles, cans, paper and cardboard.

Keep food and liquid out of your recycling.

Empty recyclables directly into your cart. NO bagged recyclables. Return plastic bags to a local grocer.

By following these three simple rules, you can have a big impact on the sustainability of recycling.

To develop, deliver and realize the potential of clean energy.

At Wheelabrator, that's our vision.

Wheelabrator Technologies is an industry leader in the safe and environmentally sound conversion of everyday residential and business waste into clean energy. Wheelabrator pioneered the energy-from-waste industry in the U.S. when it designed, built and operated the first commercially successful facility in Saugus, Massachusetts in 1975.

We have pride in ourselves, our teams and the service we have been providing to our communities for over 40 years, and we continue to leverage this history, this experience and our integrity to continue to drive operational excellence.

At Wheelabrator, we work hard to make a positive difference every day for our team, our customers, and our communities, be it in the field at one of our 23 facilities in the U.S. or the UK, or in our corporate headquarters based in Portsmouth, New Hampshire.
